IPCV goes for EMJMD – the Erasmus Mundus Joint Master Degree label has been won

- We are pleased to announce that the application jointly submitted with our two partner universities: University of Bordeaux (as Consortium leader) and Autonomous University of Madrid has been selected for co-funding.
- The IPCV - Image processing and computer vision - international master training program is going to be an EMJMD from the academic year 2018/2019.
- Erasmus Mundus Joint Master Degrees (EMJMDs) are international study programmes delivered by a consortium of higher education institutions (HEIs) from different countries and where relevant other partners with specific expertise and interest in the study programme.
- EMJMDs aim to:
  - Foster excellence, innovation, and internationalisation in HEIs
  - Boost the attractiveness of the European Higher Education Area (EHEA) and support the EU's external action in the field of higher education
  - Improve the level of competences and skills of Master graduates and their employability
- For further information about the IPCV master training program please, visit: http://ipcv.eu/